

DOER WORK 1993-2011

Doer began his graffiti career in the mid to late eighties. He was not widely known until the early nineties. During the eighties he produced work influenced by many Sydney graffiti artists. Doer has not seen his early work as it is in the possession of a writer named Raon who will not publish or share his and other writers work from the group PSK.

Doer went about forgetting the past in the early nineties and looking to the future when he started seeing the different styles of overseas graffiti being published and felt driven to make work that was different and truly his own. He broke away from the PSK crew in Sydney in the early nineties and blazed his own trail eventually reuniting with PSK to produce work as his style matured but concentrated on experimental work from 1993 to this day.

Painting warehouses, coal trains and obscure spots he inspired some young graffiti artists to explore their own art free from any obligation to a crew or scene. He is a unique artist of Sydney and its graffiti scene known by different graffiti artists for his eclectic work.
